SUMMARY OF ST. LOUIS MARKETS.

At the opening prices were generally lower, but excellent buying followed early liquiation and early in the session it seemed as though the bulls had the market well under ontrol. This strength was based almost solely on the weekly statistical news which was decidedly bullish. The visible supplies of all grains were shown to be light and the evement to market was smaller than on the corresponding day last year. Foreigners were good purchasers and there was a fair export demand. The tide turned near the end session, when reports that rain had fallen in many sections of the winter wheat belt were supplemented by weather predictions distinctly favorable to the full-planted On the receipt of this news there was heavy selling, which continued until the was weak. There was some buying early, but the sellers had the situation well in hand. When wheat dropped the coarser grains declined in sympathy.

July wheat opened %c off and closed the off. July corn opened be off and closed barbe off.

July oats sold be off.

Receipts of produce were only fair and prices were generally higher. Trading in local securities was brisk and there was a general advance, led by the trust company issues. Tractions were well supported. Yesterday's bank clearings were $8,719,949; balances, $1,455,734. Discount rates were steady between 415 and 515 per cent. Spot cotton was lee higher in the local market

MARKET HIGHER IN THE FIRST HOUR.

Statistical News Bullish, but the Weather Conditions Were Bearish.

Wheat looked very strong early in yesterday's session. After a short season of liquidation at the opening, the market advanced rapidly on the strength of the statistical news, which was mainly of a bullish character. Shortly before the close weather news decided favorable to the selling side caused a big slump, and the final quotations were ic below Saturday's fig-ures. For the week the visible supply showed a decrease, and receipts here and at other Western markets were light. The visible supply of wheat for the week decreased 2.732.000 bu. against a decrease of 1.516.000 in 1901.
